Nike soccer girls focus on growth

By Chris Faulkner
Beacon Sports

The Notre Dame-West Burlington-Danville has just 14 girls out for soccer this year, nine new to the game.

Nikes' coach, Todd Ackerman, wants to develop the raw talent as it navigates through the season.

Perennial power Davenport Assumption defeated the Nikes 14-0 Monday at Tackleson Field to open the season, with the game ending at halftime due to the 10-goal margin mercy rule.

ND-WB-Danville keeper Reese Richardson made 10 saves.

The Nikes played Central Lee at home on Thursday.

"It's going to be a growing experience, a learning experience," Coach Ackerman said. "That's what makes this job fun."

He'll be counting on his veteran players to help in that process, such as seniors Lexi Korschgen and Raylee Ayer and juniors Makyla Marsden and Emma Harris.

"They'll help chip in and help those girls learn and understand what I'm trying to do," Ackerman said.

He's encouraged by the fact that the newcomers are eager to learn.

"That's what's good about this group, is they're asking questions," he said. "So in practice, (they say), 'Why should I make this pass? What should I have done here? What should I have done there?'"

One plus for the team is that four-year veteran Korschgen, an attacking midfielder, will be able to compete in her final season. Korschgen tore her left ACL four matches into the 2024 season, and after surgery in May, she had about 10 months of rehabilitation time.

"I had a lot of people supporting me, my teammates and my coaches and parents," Korschgen said of the long haul.

"I'm focusing on coming back, praising God and knowing that everything has a plan for the future, and He has a bigger plan overall," Korschgen said.

Given the inexperience on the team, Korschgen has a different goal for her last season.

"My goal is to help my other teammates grow and prepare them for the future," she said.
