SACHA CLUB MEETS

Nine members of Sacha Club met at the Ainsworth Community Church on Monday evening, September 22, 2025.

President Brenda Bean called the meeting to order and Linda McNeil read the minutes of the previous meeting and they were approved as read. Brenda gave the treasurer's report.

New Business: Members signed up to bring cookies for the annual Halloween Hike at Marr Park on October 11. Members should have them there before noon on the 11th. The details for the annual Craft Show were finalized. Members should be at the Highland School on Friday, October 31 for set up. The show will be held November 1 at the school. Program and committee assignments were made out for the coming year.

The program for the evening was making "table tents" for the upcoming craft show.

Refreshments were served by Linda Lord.

Heads up for the UPCOMING HALLOWEEN PARTY

The Crawfordsville Community Club will once again host a Halloween Costume

Party, sponsored by the Crawfordsville American Legion and the People Savings Bank on Friday, October 31 at the Crawfordsville Fire Station, beginning at 5:30 p.m. Classes will be judged for ages pre-school through 6th grade. There will also be an open class for adults. Refreshments of Donuts, Milk and Coffee will be served following the contest.

Trick or Treating will follow from 6-8 p.m. Residents are asked to turn their porch lights on if they wish to participate in handing out treats.

city with the parade, which will require an alternate detour through Wapello during the parade time.

That assistance will apparently include additional detour signage to be installed in the area at state expense. Todd said state representative Taylor Collins had helped get the additional state assistance, pointing out the city had initially been expected to cover the additional signage expense.

Todd also discounted rumors of a cover charge to get into the evening dance, which Mapel said he had heard was being suggested.

"Not that I'm aware of," Todd said.

After Todd wrapped up his report, Huston reminded the council that the Columbus Day celebration is an event conducted by the Columbus Community Club and not the city, although the city does provide assistance.

Council member Tracy Harris also raised an issue, explaining he believed the proper procedure for opening sealed bids had recently not been followed. He pointed out the bid totals for cleanup work at Chautauqua Park following a timber harvest had been read to the council but had apparently been opened prior to the council meeting.

According to previous discussions, Todd had provided that information during the council's Sept. 10 meeting.

Harris said the sealed bids should have been at the council meeting and opened before the council. Huston did not disagree but said there had been changes in the threshold required for actually obtaining sealed bids; and although he mentioned $75,000, he was unsure if that was the current threshold.

According to reports on the Sept. 10 meeting, the council accepted a $5,500 bid from Goose Creek Services, Columbus Junction, to conduct the work.

Following that discussion, city officials agreed additional mowing and other cleanup will likely still be needed in the park.

In final action, officials agreed they may face a Trick or Treat scenario that they had acknowledged might be a possibility when they set the date for Oct. 31. The Columbus Wildcats will apparently receive two district forfeits this season – the New London and Highland games - and because of the two forfeits, the football team will be in the playoffs, officials said.

If the team wins its first playoff game, the second playoff game is scheduled for Oct. 31, the Trick or Treat night in Columbus Junction. Officials only discussed the situation and did not indicate if they felt the date needed to be revisited at this time.

Initially the council had set Oct. 30 at the Trick or Treat Night but rescheduled it to Oct. 31 after learning parent-teacher conferences were scheduled for Oct. 30. When they set the Oct. 31 date, they were aware of the potential playoff conflict but said they would deal with it if or when it occurred.
