THE AMISH COOK

Part two of Gloria's camping column

By Gloria Yoder

After spreading our sleeping bags across the grass I got out a natural product to aid with sound sleep. I smiled to myself, "This should help," I told myself as I went from one child to the next.

Night sounds could be heard as we all settled down for the night, the half-moon hung over head. Surely the Maker of it all would not leave us now.

The night passed uneventfully, in the morning I savored the quiet of the country side- that is the quiet as the absence of voices, motors, and commotion. Birds sang their sweetest, welcoming the dawn of another new day. Yet in the midst of it I wrestled with simply trusting God with life, I knew He was all good, but it was one of those times where I was also tested. At about that time a thought came to my mind, "When you get home, check to see of Tizza had her colt.'

'Strange," I thought. But what would it hurt to do just that? She would have a colt soon ... it just felt random to have a thought hit me like that.

By 6:30 the children were waking and Austin was itching to get another fire going. We savored more time together we're going to see if we before I walked back to the house to warm gravy to go with biscuits. We enjoy cooking over the fire, but this time was more about simplicity than extravagance. At the house, I never once thought of that simple statement about checking on the pony.

Back at our little camp we feasted on the yummy breakfast made by my mom which she had dropped off the day before. Soon it was time to pack up to go face the day. It felt like stepping back into real life, but then there is also a real God to go with us, too, right? Upon arriving at home I told the children can have everything put away in short order. I told them I won't have to assign specific tasks if they take notice of what needs to be put away. and dig in to do it. In less then 10 minutes the house looked peaceful again. With their jobs done they were soon scattered outdoors pursuing various projects. That is when Jesse came running to find his mom. "Tizza has a colt! Tizza has a colt!' We all dropped what we were doing and dashed for the little pasture between the house and the road. I had completely forgotten about checking her first thing when we came home. "But God knew," I told myself.

Together the children and I marveled over the little foal as it frolicked with his mother. It seemed too cute to be true. The soft brown contrasted with a white blaze, four white feet, and a few splashes of white over its side. I marveled. What a reminder of the Anchor of our soul who would care for us no matter what the cost. "Why not name him Anchor as a symbol of the true Anchor of our souls which God demonstrated once more?" I asked the children. We'll see, the children aren't all sold on the idea, so we'll see if we can reach a conclusion together. Maybe

Mom will need a couple more minutes- or days to think about it?! Here is the delicious sausage gravy recipe we used with the biscuits Sausage Gravy

1 lb. sausage ¾ cup flour

¾ tsp. salt ¼ tsp. pepper 4 ½ cups milk

Brown and crumble sausage (don't drain it). Add flour, salt and pepper and stir. If the sausage is dry, you may need to add a bit of shortening when adding flour. Add milk while stirring. Heat until it starts to boil and reduce heat and continue to stir until thickened. Makes about 5 cups of gravy.

extra to check cows. Steve Burgmeier: County does inspections on bridges, railroad has to fix bridge or give grade crossing. Railroad fixed bridge before 2012. The county would spend the $100,000 in no time. Andy Long: Railroad was the bridge positions to a bridge for owns the bridge, negligent on bridge for years. Inconvenience to put up with. Joe Burgmeier: Very well-traveled, winter cows, would spend two hours extra per day to haul feed wagons. Lives to the West, trains don't stop where they are supposed to. Michelle Burgmeier: Been stuck on Umber crossing because of ice and crossing East of town too. Train across Spruce is crossing all the time and crossings go down to one lane. Wayne Nisely: If taking horses across tracks, feet get caught in tracks. It's nice to have a bridge. Also has a greenhouse business on that road. Roger Ashby: A lot of people use that, replaced one low depth culvert which flooded road before, safety for fire department and ambulances. Marian Graber: Why was the decision to close that crossing? Not many accidents. Steve Burgmeier: railroad just wants to close all the crossings. Amos Graber Constantly uses the bridge, truck traffic GPS takes them across the bridge, city of Lockridge has a 15 ton limit. Umber or County Line for access if you close this bridge. Bridge gets slick in winter; look at alternate options like grade crossings. Andy Long: revenue off the
