If you have a concussion, your brain needs time to heal. While your brain is healing, you are much more likely to have another concussion. It is important to rest and not return to play until you get the OK from your healthcare professional.

Make sure students wear the right protective equipment for their activity. It should fit properly, be well maintained, and be worn consistently and correctly. Ensure students follow their coaches' rules for safety and the rules of the sport, and encourage them to practice good sportsmanship at all times.

For more info, visit www.cdc.gov/Concussion.

Know the law

A student participating in extracurricular interscholastic activities, in grades seven through twelve, must be immediately removed from participation if the coach, contest official, licensed healthcare provider or emergency medical care provide believe the student has a concussion based on observed signs, symptoms, or behaviors.

Once removed from participation for a suspected concussion, the student cannot return to participation until written medical clearance has been provided by a licensed healthcare provider.

A student cannot return to participation until they are free from concussion symptoms at home and at school.

The above information is based on Iowa Code Section 280.13C, Brain Injury Policies.

Concussion prevention

Enforce the rules of the sport for fair play, safety, and sportsmanship. Ensure athletes avoid unsafe actions such as striking another athlete in the head; using their head or helmet to contact another athlete; making illegal contacts or checking, tackling, or colliding with an unprotected opponent; and/or trying to injure or put another athlete at risk for injury.

Talk with athletes about the importance of reporting a concussion. Some athletes may not report a concussion because they don't think a concussion is serious. They may also worry about losing their position on the team or during the game, jeopardizing their future sports career, looking weak, letting their teammates down, or what their coach or teammates might think of them.

Create an action plan that includes information on how to teach athletes ways to lower their chances of getting a concussion. If you think an athlete may have a concussion, you should remove the athlete from play, keep an athlete with a possible concussion out of play on the same day of the injury and until cleared by a health care provider. Do not try to judge the severity of the injury yourself. Only a healthcare provider should assess an athlete for a possible concussion.

Record and share information about the injury, such as how it happened and the athlete's symptoms, to help a health care provider assess the athlete. Inform the athlete's parent(s) or guardian(s) about the possible concussion and refer them to CDC's website for concussion information. Ask for written instructions from the athlete's health care provider about the steps you should take to help the athlete safely return to play.
