Trump: Fed Should Cut Rates

says the Federal Reserve would be better off cutting rates." as U.S. tariffs start to transition (ease!) their way into the economy."

The Newsmax article goes on to say that economic growth in America will require more consumer debt; however, a wise man will understand that history has clearly shown that more debt must lead to more inflation.

Read the article and carefully note what Trump said. In order to "ease!" the increase in cost to the consumers with the increased tariffs, he is urging the FED to lower interest rates so the consumers can easily borrow more to meet the higher cost of living. In other words, more consumer debt is a means to economic growth and prosperity. There was a song from years ago with President Donald Trump the line, "when will they ever learn?" Obviously, they, the economic gurus, will never learn because their faith tells them we can borrow our way to prosperity. However, we are told by the word of God that debt is slavery.

Proverbs 22:7 "The rich ruleth over the poor, and the borrower is servant (slave) to the lender."

In the original "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" movie, the dwarfs sang as they went to work, "Hi Ho, Hi Ho, it's off to work we go.' (As a side note, notice that movie emphasized a joy in working.) The typical American theme song is "I Owe, I Owe, so it's off to work I go." Over the years, I don't know how many men I have talked with who hate their job. When I asked them why they don't change to something they like to do, they say that their debt payments chain them to the job they dread. Debt-slavery must catch up. The banks have purchased real property, cars, houses, &c., with their fiat money, and they will demand that real property in repayment for their fake paper "money." When will the time come, and it must, that the consumer-slave to the bank will find that he is without a car and without a house in which to live?

Beware! The State must have good debt-slaves to finance economic growth numbers regardless of how many people those numbers will put in the poor house. The wise man will discern the times of his time in history, and will make every effort to free yourself from those chains of debt-slavery as soon as you can.

Pella Board sets budget hearing

The Pella School Board set its certified budget hearing for April 14 at 5:30 p.m.

А separate hearing was held Monday night, during which concerns were expressed about the proposed levy. Pella Schools' is increasing its overall levy for the coming fiscal year. This is largely driven by an increase in the levy for the management fund.

The district plans to levy for approximately $1.9 million revenue for the management fund to cover costs of the early retirement equipment program, maintenance insurance, property insurance and the costs of natural gas. These costs were shifted out of the general fund – which pays for other costs including salaries and benefits. Two residents complained about the amount of property tax money going to the school district. One did not seem to understand that school property taxes are applied – even if only 2/3 of the households in Pella utilize the public schools.

"That's state our mechanism, Superintendent Greg Ebeling explained. He further explained that the board, over the past two years, has made "hard choices" to help reduce taxpayer costs. This includes action earlier this school year to cut over $800,000 from next year's budget.

"You guys have done an excellent job," Joe Canfield told the board, in a positive comment near the end of the hearing.

In other board action, resolutions were passed to approve "substantial completion" of the stadium and Jefferson/Middle School projects. There will be an Open House April 10 for the Jefferson/Middle School connection.

A pair of waivers were approved regarding legal representation. The City of Pella and the school district have both passed resolutions to allow joint representation by Ahlers and Cooney as the law firm drafts an agreement between the two for the City's recreation center. The other waiver allows a mutual representative to draft an agreement between Pella and North Mahaska Schools.

r-Dallas School Board Update

Melcher-Dallas The School Board met last week. Among the actions taken was the adoption of the district's career academic plan. This multiple-page document spells out goals and procedures to help students maximize their education.

A special board meeting will be held Monday, March 31, at 5 p.m. This is a required meeting for the district's budget process and cannot have anything else on the agenda. This winter saw school canceled on five occasions. Make-up days are scheduled for March 31, April 7, 14 and 28; and May 5.

Final Plat approved for Fix Ridge

The Pella City Council approved the final plat for a new, 12-lot subdivision known as Fox Ridge.

The development is located north of West 12th Street and is owned by Jeff Dingeman. Fox Ridge will cover around nine acres of land.

In other council action, a permit was approved for the annual Farmers' Market. The market will again be held on the north and east sides of Central Park every Thursday between April 24-Oct. 2. There will be no market May 1 due to Tulip Time, nor July 3, due to Independence Day.

The market is scheduled to operate from 4 p.m. to dusk, with setup beginning at 2:30 p.m. and take down and takedown completed by 9 p.m. There will be 14 parking spaces along the north half block on the west side of Main Street, between Washington and Franklin that will be closed, as well as all parking spaces on the south side of Washington Street, between Broadway and Main.

A permit was also approved for the 45th annual Resurrected Tin Car Show on July 12 from 6 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Sunset Acres subdivision planned

A new, 36-lot subdivision is planned for rural Marion County, outside of Pella.

Known as Sunset Acres, the Marion County Borad of Supervisors approved a preliminary plat for the subdivision.

"It's been a blessing to have 14-plus of us working on it," Mike Buchheit said. In a separate action, a waiver was passed that specifically states that the County is not responsible for maintenance of any of the infrastructure. For instance, the four private roads planned in the subdivision will not meet County requirements for pavement surface. "We're not going to do anything. It's a private road," Engineer Tyler Christian said. He later added that if the investors built the roads within the subdivision to County standards, it would be a multimillion-dollar road system. Buchheit expressed that, even if the roads do not meet County curb and gutter standards, the development is not cutting any corners.

County seeks new economic development director

Marion County Economic Development Director Carla Eysink has formally announced her retirement. Eysink is set to retire on April 29.

The Board of Supervisors intends to utilize a committee to lead the search for her replacement. Likely members of the committee include Supervisor Jim Mueller, Development Committee member Steffanie Bonstetter and Human Resources Manager Lisa Seddon. Eysink recommended the committee include a professional economic developer, who has an understanding of what the daily duties of the position will be.

Eysink has worked in this position for 29 years. The new hire will be selected by the committee, but formally approved by the supervisors.
