Courthouse set to get new AC chiller unit next week

The Chickasaw County Courthouse will be getting its new air-conditioning chiller sometime next week, and county officials are asking residents to be mindful of the work being done.

Head custodian Dave Gorman told the Board of Supervisors on Monday that Mick Gage Plumbing and Heating plans on removing the old chiller and placing the new one on the building's roof sometime next week.

Gorman said that parking may be restricted on the north side of the building, especially when the old unit is being taken off the roof.

"Once they get going, I don't think it will take long," Gorman said, "but we just want people to be aware."

Supervisors last fall voted to replace the unit after experiencing several issues during 2025.

She took a job at East High School in Waterloo, and while dancing at the Electric Park Ballroom in 1953, Mary talked with Frederic Dean Rewoldt of Frederika. Their first date was at the Charles City drive-in movie theater, where Frederic got lost in all the cars after going for popcorn. Mary let herself out of the car and waved him down.

They were at each other's side from that time on and were married at the New Hampton United Methodist Church on June 26, 1954. The couple lived for a time in the back of the Farmers Savings Bank building in Frederika, where Frederic learned the business from his father, Fred Rewoldt. The couple built a home on First Avenue on the Wapsipicon River in Frederika, where they stayed for 60 years.

Mary taught at Frederika High School and welcomed daughter Margaret Jane in 1955 and then son Frederic John in 1959.

Before she turned 40, Mary lost both of her parents suddenly within one month of each other. Left alone with no siblings or parents, this double loss was life-defining, and she turned to her community to build an extended family.

In the years that followed, she became that same source of steadiness and connection for others. She knew and loved her neighbors and was active in St. John's Lutheran Church, card clubs, school board, 4-H, scouts, Town and Country Women, Bremer County Republicans and later the Red Hat Ladies.

Mary refined hostess practices and took joy in pretty dishes, the perfect cup of tea and a freezer full of cinnamon rolls, Schwan's ice cream treats, or whatever taste her children and their friends desired.

Mary supported Frederic's career and worked weekends at the bank, growing to know their customers as good friends.

Mary cheered all small-town causes including sports teams, history-saving efforts in Chickasaw County and later at the Poor Farm Foundation in Bremer County, as well as civic projects like the Veterans Memorial in Frederika. When her children left for college, Mary and two friends started the Candy Kitchen and delivered molded confections to nearby customers.

When the restaurant closed on Main Street in Frederika, Mary and her good friend Selma Carroll ran it as the S and M Cafe for one year while a new operator was recruited. Mary enjoyed pop-up camping and then motorhome travel with Frederic, family and friends. The couple also traveled to Germany and Ireland several times to anchor connections to distant cousins. Later the couple spent winters in Apache Junction, Arizona.

Beginning in the mid-1980s, Mary and Frederic focused life on their four grandchildren, Frederic Andrew and Elizabeth Margaret Smith and Frederic Ian and Abby Lee Rewoldt — attending games, concerts and birthday parties. Mary adored Frederic Samson and Naomi Joy Smith, and Thomas Clifford Bryde, her three great-grandchildren.

In 2016, Mary moved to Homestead, an independent living cooperative in New Hampton, where she made a new family of friends and lived on her own until a week before she died. She served on the Homestead Board into her 90s. Mary will be
